Several island destinations are now open to leisure travel and within easy reach of South Africa.

They offer everything from palm-lined beaches to volcanic features and incredible marine life.

Some still have availability - and deals - for travel this year or early next.

Many are a direct flight away from Johannesburg, and most only require a negative PCR test before departure.

Here are several island holidays worth considering - and what Covid-19 considerations are currently in place.

Nothing says escape from reality, or Covid-19, quite like an island holiday. After nearly two years of being difficult to reach or closed to tourism altogether, several islands within reach of South Africa are reopening to tourists - and some still have availability at reasonable rates for December and January.
